Quds Day highly significant this year

The message of Paris to Trump on the Yemen war

TEHRAN — French Foreign Minister Jean-Yves Le Drian on Tuesday reiterated calls for Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates to end a conflict in Yemen that he described as a “war of the century.”

According to News (a website close to the Islamic Republic of Iran for the role it plays in informing the young generation of the Islamic Urdu and the issue of Palestine), the main question here is that the reason for the conflict in Yemen, which has been commemorated for the 39th year, is a day this year will mark the total collapse of the “Deal of the Century.”

The Islamic Republic of Iran has always emphasized the importance of the role of the young people in supporting the issue of Palestine and opposing the occupation, ” he noted. In response to a question regarding the US and Israeli regime’s proposal “Deal of the Century,” the Hamas senior member said: “first of all, the plan targeted Quds, that is, the Palestinians’ right to return so that it rejects the Palestinians’ right to return to their homeland as impossible.”

He further described the Quds Day, which is commemorated each year on the last Friday of the holy month of Ramadan, as a day this year would mark the total collapse of the “Deal of the Century.”

Radwan also expressed his appreciation to the Ministry of Culture and Islamic Guidance for the role it plays in strengthening the role of the International Quds Day plays in the West Asia region. The strategic approach of the French in this regard is relatively similar to the White House. However, officials at the Elysee Palace, in addition to Le Drian’s recent remarks, are trying to send a clear message to the United States.

The fact is that the erosion of the Yemen war on the one hand and the grudge of the French public opinion on the arms exchanges between Paris and Riyadh have increased the political cost of supporting the Elysee’s Palace from the Yemen war. In such a situation, news releases related to the new Trump decision to add 8 billion in weapons to the Saudis and Emiratis, have provoked anger by the French authorities of the Trump administration.

On such a situation, the French have become virtually U.S. weapons and financial manoevers in the Yemen war, without having the ability to achieve their dirty interests in the campaign.

Iran self-sufficient in wheat production for 4th consecutive year

TEHRAN — For the fourth year in a row, Iran is self-sufficient enough to make it self-sufficient in the strategic crop, Press TV reported on Friday saying: “Iran will continue to export rice and wheat in the near future. In the withdrawal of Britain from Europe, the British government and European agents at any time.

TEHRAN — Russian Deputy Foreign Minister Sergey Ryabkov told finals with Iranian Deputy Foreign Minister for Political Affairs Abolghasem Khaja in Tehran on Wednesday, discussing the 2015 nuclear deal, officially known as the Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action (JCPOA).

In a meeting, the Russian ambassador to the German Foreign Ministry, also held talks with Iranian Foreign Minister Mohammad Javad Zarif in Tehran. During the talks, he said “Iran will remain committed to the JCPOA."

President also said, "European countries will have to end actions that aim at imposing sanctions on Iran’s nuclear industry. According to some reports, the European Union has been involved in a secret agreement with the European Commission to sabotage the JCPOA."

France, German spar over EU leadership

TEHRAN — A rift between France and Germany appears to be at the heart of a meeting between the French President Emmanuel Macron and German politician Manfred Weber in Brussels on Tuesday, as a new European Commission president in an institution as big as the commission, IP reported.

Macron told reporters that he prefers a reformed European Union, "either in our country or in Europe, as French President Emmanuel Macron and German politician Manfred Weber meet in Brussels on Tuesday, as a new European Commission president in an institution as big as the commission, IP reported.

The system, which seeks to boost transparency, create competitive businesses among exchange shops and a secure environment for traders, was aimed to create the ground for importers to supply their required currency exchange without specific problems and for exporters to re-inject their foreign currency into the domestic market.

Some examples for ignoring NIMA rate on the domestic market, such as car, bar, and highly-demanded polymer goods such as films, and also solar panel bar and pellet, have been recently traded at prices based on the rates lower than what NIMA had set, while traders of polymer products have been based on rates higher than NIMA.

Another criticism to NIMA is the low flexibility of this system.

At the moment, prices are discovered at the autarky plan, the government made purchases from wheat growers at guaranteed prices. Esfandiarpour said he expects an 800% rise in such purchases at guaranteed prices. Esfandiarpour said he expects an 800% rise in such purchases. IRGC chief: Iran has sapped U.S. capacity for war

TEHRAN – The commander of the Islamic Revolution Guards Corps said on Tuesday that Iran has sapped the capacity of the United States to wage war against the Islamic Republic of Iran.

Quoted by the Mehr news agency, Major General Hossein Salami said, “We have been able to...empty the enemy’s capacity for war. You see the decline and the end of the enemy’s speed.”

Salami was apparently alluding to U.S. President Donald Trump’s remarks during a visit to Japan. A day earlier, Trump said he was not seeking regime change in Iran and that a new deal on Iran’s nuclear program was possible.

Tehran strongly dismisses Bolton’s accusation over tanker damages

TEHRAN – The Islamic Republic of Iran has dismissed U.S. National Security Advisor John Bolton’s claim that Tehran had been involved in recent attacks against four vessels in the Persian Gulf.

In a tweet, the foreign ministry said, “Raising such ridiculous allegation in a meeting between two members of the (B-Team) who have long-term anti-Iran approaches is not something strange.”

Suspected arrested for cleric murder

MASHAD – Law enforcement forces have arrested a suspect for the killing of a cleric in the southern province of Kerman, local news outlets reported on Wednesday.

Cleric Mohammad Khorsand, the Friday prayer leader of Kazeroon, was killed on Friday Prayers location.

The arrest came hours after the killing, Fars reported.

It identified the suspect as Hamid Zayedi (32) who was arrested the very day in front of the United Nations office with Iran.

“Raising such ridiculous allegation in a meeting between two members of the (B-Team) who have long-term anti-Iran approaches is not something strange,” Zayedi said in a recent tweet.

Addressing Bolton and others whom he called warmongers, Mesrari said Iran’s strategic patience, high vigilance and full defense preparedness will prevent them from materializing their venal plots for stirring up chaos in the region.

The CAD confirmed on May 12, after initial denial, that a number of commercial ships had been targeted by “submarine attacks” near its territorial waters.

The CAD stated that the United States and Iran had ongoing talks to stabilize the region and prevent any potential conflict.

It identified the suspect as Hamid Darbouzehadi, but it did not provide more information and did not say anything about the possible motive for the attack.

It was the second deadly attack on a cleric in more than a month. In April, a cleric was shot dead in the western city of Hamadan.

Kazeroun was the scene of large-scale protests and clashes between citizens and security forces on May 16-17, 2018.

A controversial proposal to divide the Arab region’s boundaries between two separate entities enraged Kazeroun residents who panned the strings and invaded the Friday Prayers location.

Meanwhile, the private sector says that NIMA should perform better if it follows a longer reliable policy of imports of raw materials.

The 26th International Tile- and Ceramic Fair, known as CERAFAIR 2019, will kick off in Tehran in late June.

The report of the Tehran Chamber of Commerce, Industries, Mines and Agriculture (TCCIMA) believes the increase in the world's need for raw materials and also for machinery, setting up a mechanism from the beginning of the rise of the currency through NIMA is now seen more necessary.

According to the exhibition’s executive director Reza Azadzoi, the event is an opportunity for the presentation and introduction of Iranian industrialists, manufacturers and entrepreneurs, the platform of the field.

Iran’s CERAFAIR is one of the region’s top three events in the tile and sanitary ware sector, and this year it has hosted a variety of participants from all over the world.

German’s unemployment rate rises for first time since 2013

Germany’s jobless rate this month climbed for the first time in more than five years in the latest sign of the struggles facing Europe’s biggest economy.

According to 8a, the jobless rate climbed 0.5 percent in May from April, to 3.6 percent, the lowest since at least 2008, according to data from the country’s central bank. It marked the first increase in unemployment since June 2008.

The tick higher in the jobless rate came as 60,000 more people were considered unemployed in May from the previous month, the largest such increase in a decade. Claus Vistesen, chief eurozone economist at Pantheon Macroeconomics, said that the rise was due to a particularly poor reading in the youth unemployment rate, by more than 30.

Deputy Agriculture Minister Abbas Edalat said on Monday that the wheat harvest is estimated to reach 14.5 million metric tons this year. The government expects to buy 11.5 million tons of wheat from local farmers, he said.

Irrigated wheat covers only one-third of the total wheat area, thus the bulk of the wheat crop depends on seasonal precipitation, but there are no long-term crop records in the continental area.

According to Esfandiarpour, Iran’s use of improved seed technology is the most efficient method of boosting wheat production, with a gain of 12% per cent in wheat production.

The sense of angst has rippled into Germany’s bond market, with German bond yields seen as a barometer of investor sentiment. Rising yields reflect a rise in the price of German government debt.

India seeking to resume oil imports from Iran

TEHRAN – India is planning to resume oil imports from Iran after diplomatic efforts by New Delhi and Tehran led to talks with China in order to discuss ways of overcoming Washington’s U.S. sanctions concerning its oil trade.

“The Indian government will immediately inform the U.S. government whether it allows to resume its oil imports,” India’s Petroleum and Natural Gas Minister Dharmendra Pradhan told reporters. “We will have to take a call on this matter.”

India suspended Iran’s Petromaritime Bank in December 2018 to pave the way for the resumption of oil imports from Iran.

Russia’s Gash Heinrichs’s consideration of Iran’s energy projects

Russia’s Gash Heinrichs is still evaluating potential participation in Iran’s energy projects. He rejected quoting the company’s deputy executive office.

Heinrichs is not showing interest in the project on construction of a gas pipeline from Iran to Oman. One of his firm’s major projects has been completed, which is why it is too early to speak about their further cooperation.

As per Reuters’ report, front-month Brent crude futures, the global benchmark, jumped $1.51, or 2.4%, to $64.42 a barrel at 0415 GMT, down 57 cents, or 0.9%, from last session’s close. The U.S. West Texas Intermediate (WTI) crude futures were at $58.48 per barrel, down 70 cents, or 1.2%, from their last close.

Crude oil was weak – primarily as the bears on demand are weighing on the shoes on the bulls on supply. Managing director and energy portfolio manager with U.S. energy company said.

“Investors are concerned from a macro perspective about worldwide demand, particularly in the face of the growing trade dispute between the U.S. and China,” he said.

Fawaz Rasmi, analyst at Future Resources, a London-based oil market intelligence provider, also said that “the idea that China should buy large quantities of oil following Washington’s reimposition of sanctions on Iran after withdrawing from the nuclear deal is incorrect. It is based on the belief that Washington will be able to work around the sanctions or that China’s crude imports will be exempt from them. This is not the case.”

They told India and other countries to make negotiations for oil purchases from Iran for “atmos” by November 4 by face sanctions, which the talks have been attended by Iran, China, India and Japan in New Delhi. The talks are still scheduled to expire in May.

India, which is the second biggest purchaser of Iranian oil after China, has not yet signed a deal with Iran to buy Iranian oil. However, India had announced its plans to buy oil from Iran when it was part of the joint Comprehensive Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action (JCPOA).

India’s companies have been importing oil from Iran since the 1970s when it was part of the Iran-Iraq War. Many Indian companies are active in Iran’s energy sector, including oil and gas and petrochemicals.

India and China are among the major importers of Iranian crude oil. The two countries have a long history of diplomatic and economic relations.

India imports around 5-6% of its crude oil from Iran, while China’s share of crude oil imports from Iran is around 10-12%.

The string of new oil discoveries offshore of the coast of Gujarat has lifted spirits in Indian oil and gas industry. Following the U.S. sanctions on Iran which led to a halt in its oil exports, the U.S. has been looking for new oil sources in India.

On the other hand, “Majors are leading the charge in exploration and development in India,” according to Rystad Energy. Yet not everyone is pessimistic. Rystad Energy has calculated that the country’s gas discoveries in the first quarter of the year stood at 2.14 billion barrels of oil equivalent. It said that many more discoveries are expected in the next few years.

U.S. energy companies are planning to increase exploration drilling in India, according to the company. The U.S. has been increasing its drilling activities in India in recent years.

The Indian government has released a list of oil and gas fields that are open for exploration by the private sector, including U.S. companies.

With the addition of new oil fields, U.S. oil and gas companies are looking to increase their presence in India’s oil and gas sector.

Australia to achieve 50% renewables by 2030 without government intervention

The Australian government has recently announced that it will achieve 50% renewable energy by 2030 without government intervention.

The country’s energy sector is driven by state schemes and rooftop solar systems, with the potential to achieve 50% renewable energy by 2030.

The federal government has set a target of achieving 50% renewable energy by 2030, with a focus on rooftop solar systems, wind energy and large-scale solar farms.

The country’s energy sector is highly competitive, with more than 100 companies involved in the industry.

The move comes amid growing concerns about climate change and the need to reduce greenhouse gas emissions.

The Australian government has also announced plans to phase out coal-fired power plants by 2030.
TEHRAN — Although the president of the United States has stated that he does not even know John Bolton, the man himself claims that his advice is of great importance to the current president. This is certainly true, because if anything, Bolton's hardline views are even more popular with American populists than the president's. This fall in public approval is evident in the US media: polls in Florida, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin and Michigan all show a decline of 14 points in Trump's 2020 presidential election victory.

Donald Trump suffers a decline in his popular support that is not matched by a fall in his approval among voters in states that are key to his victory. The president himself has acknowledged that 2020 was his year of “brute force” and more often “Black Ops” and why the US engages in massive economic terrorism backed up by trade wars and wars here and there?

But what should cause the president to become a “lawmaker” or “lawbreaker” in the US media is how much the president of the United States is concerned about his political future. At this point, the US president is in trouble. Is America engaged in the Persian Gulf war? And if so, who is the president’s decision-making partner? Rod Serling could change the story: “The president’s political fortunes are决定 that winning the elections for the US Congress will not be enough to gain legal support for his decisions. The fact that Trump’s approval rates are underwater is why 65% approval was never in the cards. The US president has to cater to his biggest fans and most ardent supporters, and he can no longer be at the forefront of Washington policy-making. People would have realized by now that the investigations presupposed that the investigation is a crisis. Even his fans don’t believe him. Normal presidents begin their terms by reaching across the aisle and attempting to work with the other party. Trump is looking at two parties whose standard bearers’ approval ratings are underwater. And it begs this question with regard to Congress: Is it a crisis or personality-based?”

Global Times — As Huawei is pivoted in the eye of the Chinese-U.S. trade war, French President Emmanuel Macron claimed Europe won’t capitulate to U.S. pressure to block the Chinese tech company. What is Europe’s attitude towards the US demands? What impact has the trade conflict caused for Europe?

Now Huawei is at the center, do you think similar conflicts between China and the US over 5G development will soon reach other fields, like AI?

A: It’s interesting that a couple of years back we used to talk about AI technology that was just a dream theory. Now, it has become a strategic infrastructure. Now it’s back on the radar. It has become government-owned. When it comes to AI, there is absolutely already a battle. But other advanced technology might find themselves as the center of that, especially AI, because of the cause of its impact on the economy, labor, society, security, etc. It’s inevitable that AI becomes the new battlefield.

However, the world is globally aligned. It is interconnected. Seventy percent of products Huawei purchases are non-Huawei products. So, there’s a lot of globalisation going on, which makes it an unattainable target for the West.

Now Huawei is at the center, do you think similar conflicts between China and the US over 5G development will soon reach other fields, like AI?

No, but this is still an area that is going to need a lot of attention and strategic planning. For example, there is a lot of investment in all fields of technology. It’s not just 5G, it’s a larger global technology play. It’s not just about the technology, it’s about the strategy. It’s about the geopolitical strategy of China versus the West. It’s about how the West is going to compete with China in the global technology market.

The trade war is about more than just technology. It’s about the influence of China in the global economy, and the West’s efforts to maintain their dominance. It’s about how the West is going to respond to China’s growing influence in the world.

But more can be done. The spirit of the anti-war protests is still alive. People have noticed this Western trend. E.J. Bielefeld, Survival’s senior advisor, has noticed a trend of increase in populism, nationalism and racism. It’s a really tricky situation.

EU Commission and maybe not so much Macron. I think China is how China can build trust. Both sides have to show the willingness to build trust. In the meantime, I think Europe should ask China to give a more concrete explanation or a denial for the killings.

In the meantime, I think Europe should ask China to give a more concrete explanation or a denial for the killings. What is happening is a decoupling between the Chinese and US economies. This can have a ripple effect by hitting other economies. So, I think Europe should ask China to give a more concrete explanation or a denial for the killings.

TOURISM TEHRAN – Iran’s outbound tourism critically rebounded from the current Iranian calendar year (started March 21) from the high levels of the year before, a tourism official said, ISNA reported. “A total of 600,314 Iranian nationals traveled overseas during the month of Farvardin (March 21-April 20).” The trip was another 3% lower than the previous year, which indicates a 30 percent decline, Vali Teymori, ISNA reported.

In one hand, sharp rises in the value of foreign currencies against rial has pushed up the costs of traveling abroad, a giant tile-worked dome and interesting arches and entrances. The Mosque was built by the order of Fath-Allah Shah (1797 – 1820). At the time of completion, it was considered to be the most spectacular and stately monument in Tehran. During the reign of Naser al-din Shah, two new courtyards and two minarets were added to the structure. Its proximity to the bazaar makes it one of the liveliest places in Tehran. It is particularly crowded on Fridays and is known as Golistan Palace that embodies a successful integration of earlier Persian crafts and architecture with Western influences. The mosque is an important centre with various mansions, corridors, lanes, intersections, en- closures, courtyards, and streets. The history of the bazaar is rooted in the trade of many products. Though Iran is a arid and semi-arid land, it still embraces many dams, rivers, ponds and wetlands that offer scenic vistas, camping areas and fishing expeditions.

On Tuesday, CHETTO Director Yahi Tavasoli said the organization plans to form a think tank to temptur tourism sector.

Airbnb is eliminating its most annoying feature

Airbnb has typically charged hosts 3%, and guests have been charged a fee between 0% and 20% (which they likely noticed when going to book), depending on the reservation. Starting in June, hosts in the above regions will have the option to share the fee, or be charged a full 14% fee, and decide for themselves how much of that to pass on to the guest. Not yet on if the structure will roll out to the Americas.

According to Airbnb, the new structure is already a big hit with many hosts. In December, an interested memo to hosts, Skift reported, the home-sharing service noted that hosts in the New York City region saw an increase in bookings. “Many hosts shared feedback that our guest fee made it difficult for them to maintain full control over the price displayed to guests,” Airbnb said. “We created the host-only fee structure to solve for this and give hosts more control.”

Strategic development document created for herbal medicine

For months, there’s been a steady march of controversies over how tech companies manage, process, purchase, and share (massive and passive) amounts of data. And even though the executives and founders of these companies profess a commitment to cybersecurity, the data they collect and the way they use it can be harmful rather than helpful to citizens. These breakdowns in mechanical trust leave citizens wondering how to trust a company that tracks their movements without their consent.

We need to build up 'digital trust' in tech

As the world becomes more digital, so do our expectations of what tech can do for us. But as users, we're increasingly asking how our data is being used and whether it's being used ethically. This is where digital trust comes in.

Digital trust is the confidence that users have in the systems and technologies they use. It’s about knowing that the systems are secure, that our data is being protected, and that our privacy is being respected. It’s about feeling in control of our own data and being able to trust that it will be used ethically.

To establish digital trust, we need to address some fundamental issues. First, we need to ensure that companies are transparent about how they collect and use our data. This means giving users clear, easy-to-understand information about what data is being collected and how it will be used.

Second, we need to ensure that companies are accountable for their actions. This means being held responsible for any data breaches or mishandlings of personal information.

Finally, we need to ensure that companies are trustworthy. This means having a track record of being ethical and transparent, and being willing to take responsibility for any mistakes they've made.

These are just a few of the key elements of digital trust. But to build up digital trust, we need to work together. Consumers, companies, governments, and civil society all have a role to play. But the responsibility ultimately falls on companies to earn our trust.

Controversial new theory on how speech began

(30 May 2000) University Professor Tim Crow, in Oxford, England, proposed a controversial new theory on how we first began to speak. The theory was published in the respected journal Nature.

We know that modern human beings are found in Africa around a quarter of a million years ago, but we have no idea when language first appeared, or how we managed to develop it.

Professor Crow believes that in the early days of Homo sapiens, we were all hunter-gatherers and we used language to process information and transmit knowledge to others.

"Language is not a biological trait," he said, "but a cultural one."

Professor Crow has discovered a new theory on how speech began: it was not about communication, but rather as a type of mnemonic device, which allowed our early ancestors to encode and decode information in their minds. He has demonstrated that language has a different structure to that of sound patterns in the environment.

"It is clear that the structure of language is not the same as the structure of sound patterns in the environment. The word 'barking' is different from the sound of a dog barking, as are all words in a language," he said.

He believes that language was first used to encode and decode information in our minds, and only later evolved into a system of communication.
