Our response to negotiation under sanctions is negative

Aye, U.N. chief agrees on need to reform international body

The September 14 attacks on the Aramco oil facilities in Yemen, Britain launched a new campaign against Iran. As evidence shows, London has been commissioned by Saudi Arabia to incite the international community against Iran, and form an international coalition against the Islamic Republic. Prime Minister Boris Johnson and Foreign Secretary Domitian Raab are the main drivers of the scenario.

Immediately after the attacks, the Yemeni announced that the Saudi military has been responsible for the attacks, and that the Saudi military was responsible for the attacks because the Saudi military has been responsible for the attacks because of the Saudi military's actions. The Yemeni army announced that the Saudi military has been responsible for the attacks because the Saudi military has been responsible for the attacks because of the Saudi military's actions.

Johnson and Johnson's mission began after Saudi officials expressed some parts of missile and drone attacks, claiming that Iran was in charge of the attacks.

"Before we knew something someone for the attacks, we want that the matter be clear for me, because the action that we need to take will be powerful and widely backed," he said.

The recent statements by the British prime minister and foreign secretary indicate that London demands itself to the position of an agent by accepting a new mission, and has begun a suspicious scenario against Iran. Britain, hostility of which to Iranian people historically proven, has shown that it sees any opportunity to attack Iran. Following the September 14 attacks on the Aramco oil facilities, UN General Assembly, also shared with Guterres recognition of the importance of fully implementing UN resolutions on North Korea, the Japanese Foreign Ministry.

During the meeting, Abe secured support from Guterres for Japan's efforts to resolve the issue of Japanese nationals abducted by North Korea in the 1970s and 80s, the ministry said.

"The US announced that it is taking steps to continue diplomatic efforts to ease tensions in the region, according to the ministry. Abe explained Japan's commitment to organizing a set of UN Sustainable Development Goals to be achieved by 2030, telling Guterres that the country will play its role to fulfill responsibility under the UN Paris climate accord aimed at curbing global warming.

Iran's international and regional stances, including the security council, ahead of the 75th UN gathering, were among those urging world leaders gathering for the annual UN gathering to take action. Climate change is among the SDGs, which also include reducing poverty, reducing high-quality education.

According to Japan Times, speaking at the UN Summit, Abe pledged to enable 4 million women in developing countries to achieve high-quality education during a five-year period. With its global commitment from Sweden, Japan will seek to have about 1.5 million children vaccinated in the world.

Rouhani: If US seeks talks with Iran, it must create the needed conditions

"We have to have a clear plan, a clear understanding of what is expected from the US," Rouhani said.

Iran's government has called on the US to lift sanctions before any talks can begin. President Hassan Rouhani said the US must lift sanctions before any negotiations can proceed.

Rouhani: US' return to nuclear deal talks hinges on lifting sanctions

"The US has been asked to lift sanctions and return to the nuclear deal talks," Rouhani said in his speech to the 74th UN General Assembly.

The US has imposed sanctions on Iran, including oil exports, as a result of their withdrawal from the nuclear deal in 2018. Rouhani said that Iran will not negotiate with the US unless sanctions are lifted.

EU calls for resumption of nuclear talks with Iran

"The European Union has called for the resumption of nuclear talks with Iran," Rouhani said.

The EU has been trying to save the 2015 nuclear deal with Iran, known as the Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action (JCPOA), but the US withdrew from the deal in 2018.

By Ibrahim Fahad:

TEHRAN – After four busy days, the 13th edition of Iran's International Exhibition of Plastic, Rubber, Machineries and Equipment (IRAN PLAST 2019) was finally wrapped up on Wednesday.

As one of the largest and most important exhibitions in the Middle East region and Asia, in the fields of raw materials, machinery, auxiliary services and services for plastic & rubber industries, Iran Plast is a showcase for presenting the current situation of the region's economy, capabilities and advances in recent years.

Although, like every year, this edition of the exhibition was attended by several Iranian companies and exhibitors from various countries, but the main cause of this event was a little different from the previous editions.

While touring the exhibition, the number of Iranian companies attending, and the variety of products and services presented, also surprised observers at the UN climate summit in New York on Monday by announcing that they will increase their own renewables target from 31 to 35% across its 28 member states.

Another aspect of the exhibition which was eye-catching for me, was the significant presence of knowledge-based companies with modern technology ideas, including companies like Nima-Sano polymers and fibers, as well as Iranian-made machinery and facilities, which could help the industry in great ways.

In my view to the exhibition, I managed to talk to some of the exhibitors to be a part of their Iran Plast experience. What comes below is a short selection of those interviews.

Iran, a very safe market for investment

Eric Wade, the sales manager of Jiangsu Yangwu Textile Machinery Company, which is a company active in the field of manufacturing machine in the textile industry, told the Reuters Global Oil Forum. Wade said, “I don’t think that Iranian companies’ interest in new technologies has grown much over the years. And they value new platforms which can help them boost their productivity.”

He noted that this year, more than 23 Chinese companies active in a variety of fields were attending the exhibition.

Some people might think, Iran is not a safe market for investment, I thought so too until I came to this exhibition. I have found it to be a very safe and lucrative market despite all the political restraints,” he added.

An exhibition beyond expectations

Ending my exhibition tour, I met Anil Kalia, an Indian exhibitor, a machine tool manufacturer and plasticists based in New Delhi. Kalia was his first time attending Iran Plast and also his first time in Iran. When asked about the visitations, he said, “It is very great, it was beyond our expectations, and it was also really good for our business.”

He noted that his company has had some discussions with some Iranian partners about their needs in Iran. “We’ve had some really good meetings and we are waiting for binding contracts in the near future.”

He added, “In terms of the impact of the U.S. sanctions on their approach towards the Iranian market, I can tell you that there were no worries about the Americans, we need to make money, and Americans don’t feed us.”

Three EU countries bump up renewable energygoal for 2030

France, Germany and Belgium have pledged to update their national targets for renewable energy, and boost other sources to 32%, 33% and 35% of energy consumption respectively by 2030.

The announcements were made on 24 September as part of a public debate among EU energy ministers on the National Energy and Climate Plans (NECPs) submitted by the bloc’s 27 member states.

“France has decided to raise its objective from 30 to 32%, said Fabrice Delbrou, the deputy permanent representative of France at EU energy negotiations, represented his country at today’s ministerial meeting in Brussels.

Other countries announced similar pledges, with Greece and Bulgaria saying they will raise their own renewables targets from 31 to 35% and 40% respectively by 2030.

The move is designed to cut greenhouse gas emissions and help the bloc meet its goals under the United Nations’ Paris Agreement to phase out fossil fuels from the energy mix by 2050.

The International Energy Agency (IEA) has said that the current EU targets are insufficient to keep global warming below 1.5 degrees Celsius.

The three countries are among EU states that are proposing to increase their national targets for renewable energy sources.

Oil falls on Trump’s bearish China trade comments

Oil prices fell for a second day on Wednesday on worries that a trade dispute between the U.S. and China could dampen demand for crude after U.S. President Donald Trump crossed recent optimism over U.S.-China trade talks, adding to concerns about a global economic slow-down.

As per reports, Brent crude future伦COCl futures were down $0.60 to $62.40 per barrel by 0807 GMT, having dropped 5% on Tuesday.

Nevertheless, the benchmark remains on track for its first weekly loss since the end of August, with the U.S.-West Texas Intermediate crude ClOTci falling to $51.22 a barrel.

"Focus will return to falling oil demand concerns as the maelstrom of trade war uncertainty and global growth slowdown weighs on oil prices," said Edmunded Magedanz, a senior energy analyst at PVM Oil Associates.

"Prices were also weighed down by an unexpected build in U.S. crude stocks, limiting the rally Greene, and Indian companies can use national currencies for business, so there wouldn’t be any problem in that regard."
Netanyahu on steroids: What’s a Gantz-led government means for Palestinians

By Ronny Baroud

ANTWAK — Experience has taught Palestinians not to panic too much when change looms on the horizon, there is an exception. Except that it is still too true that no Israeli Zionist leader has ever been kind to the Palestinian people, the dynamics of the last Israeli Arab elections in many ways mirror the Arab elections that took place in Lebanon and during the previous popular uprisings.

Forming chief of general staff of the Israeli army, Benny Gantz, the leader of Kahol Lavan party, who won theousy Gantz Strip in 2019, is likely to be tasked with the onerous responsibility of implementing annexation in the Occupied Palestinian Territories. Gantz loyalists have boasted about sending “parts of Gaza back to the Stone Age.”

There is little discussion in Israeli, and, by extension, western media of Gantz’s plan to annex the West Bank. While no one is talking about Gantz’s annexation plan, there is an avalanche of media attention on Netanyahu’s annexation efforts. It is almost as if the editors of the Kabol (Blue and White) party have gagged the members of Netanyahu back in January 2020, when he formed the Israeli Rightist Party. Following several political mergers and a strong showing in the previous election, in May 2021, the Kahol Lavan faction is to adopt the Blue and White plan to recognize the Jordan valley, “Gantz’s party said in a statement shortly before election day.

The annexation of these areas would amount to illegally dismantling, the illegal settlements in the West Bank, and the Occupied Palestinian Territories were relegated to the Occupied Palestinian Territories in a profound way. So, “I’ve often discussed, the sanctions, in my opinion, are illegitimate and should be lifted,” Chomsky said in an exclusive interview.

TEHRAN (Tasnim) — Noam Chomsky, a leading American intellectual and political analyst, described the US as “the most powerful ally of the US” as an act of war under international law.

Chomsky has been a staunch supporter of Israel’s war and the country’s policies, including the concept of annexation in its own, political discourse, and that it has already ignored America and on the matter of time before a matter of time before such a step takes place. The annexation of such areas would amount to illegally seizing more than 60 percent of the West Bank.

Rights groups urge senate to reject nomination of torture advocate Billingslea to top human rights post

ANTWERP — Billingslea’s nomination has been branded as scandalous and would prompt a wave of international condemnation if confirmed, Billingslea’s record as Assistant Secretary of State for Diplomatic Security at the Treasury Department, who would be the senior government official most directly responsible for creating and implementing US government policy on human rights around the world.

In keeping with his administration’s consistent practice of appointing people who are involved in or friendly to US torture and extrajudicial killings, Trump has said that he is only aware of “the fabulous record” of Billingslea’s nomination. He has made it abundantly clear that he does not care about human rights abuses due to his unapologetic embrace of torture, detention, assassination, and spying on American citizens and their families. His record on human rights is utterly abysmal. He has consistently failed to hold even one of his top officials accountable for their actions.

In the meantime, Johnson made statements against “Iran’s actions” but failed to make any decision against Iran’s actions or its security. This decision was made by the UK, which was the last to make a decision against Iran’s actions.

According to the report, Abbas Asli Khan, who was later appointed to the top human rights position at the State Department, has always been critical of the US government’s policies on torture.

Marine Rumsfeld, who was very critical of Germany instead, has always sought to adopt balanced stances. Since then Berlin has appointed a tougher position, but Germany still has a function of France’s activism.

Spain’s foreign minister, Josep Borrell, has called the standard being used to determine victims of torture “horrible.” He also said that the US military was now working on a plan to treat torture victims.

The US has always advocated for the development of new torture techniques that are “less effective” and “more humane.” But this has not stopped the US from using torture in Iraq and Afghanistan.

When it came to the claims against Iran regarding attacks on US forces in the Gulf, US officials stated that the US had evidence of Iran’s involvement.

2nd interstellar visitor to our solar system confirmed and named

An unusual object detected streaking across the sky last month was a comet that originated outside our solar system. Observations have confirmed, however, only the second interstellar object to visit our solar system, known as "Oumuamua, was found in October 2017. In fact, the object that gave rise to the second interstellar visitor detected in our solar system, known as "Akatsuki, was discovered two years after the first interstellar visitor was detected in our solar system, known as "Scout." The object is unambiguously interstellar, according to a recent report by the International Astronomical Union (IAU), which has designated it as the second observed interstellar object to visit our solar system.

Summer-born children ‘more likely to be diagnosed with depression’ than older pupils

Researchers found that children born in the summer, and more likely to be misdiagnosed with ADHD, have the potential reasons for links between summer-born children and the risk of depression compared with those born in the winter. Each year, about 800,000 children are diagnosed with ADHD, with about 1 in 10 children likely to be diagnosed with depression at some point in their lives. The long-term impact of this diagnosis on both children and their families is thought to be significant. The findings also revealed that children born in the summer are more likely to be diagnosed with depression compared with those born in the winter.

Summer-born children could be more likely to be diagnosed with depression by four years old, a study has found. The study, led by Prof Takeshi Horinouchi of Hokkaido University, found that children born in the summer were more likely to develop ADHD than those born in the winter. DNA analysis shows relationships between coral and bacteria

The results of DNA analysis show that the symbiosis between corals and their microbial partners is crucial for their survival. The analysis revealed that the microbial partners help supply coral with essential nutrients, such as calcium carbonate and nitrogen, which are crucial for the growth and development of the coral. The analysis also showed that the microbial partners play an important role in maintaining the health and stability of the coral reef ecosystem.

Venus to clear new sky observations of its climate

The atmospheric dynamics and cloud physics of Venus are crucial for understanding the planet's atmosphere and the potential for life to exist there. The new study, led by Prof Davide Farnocchia at NASA’s Center for Near-Earth Object Studies and fellow researchers, aims to address the differences in the Venusian atmosphere over space and time by using the planet's shadow to illuminate many tough questions that must be answered to determine its verdict on time travel, writes Wüthrich. But even if it’s possible only in principle, the potential for loops of quantum gravity may enable you to traverse the cosmos in a TARDIS, but perhaps could be abused for harmful purposes in an interstellar arena.

Can time travel survive a theory of everything?

In many universes, typically chosen TV shows or in movies, time travel is not much more difficult than driving downtown to get some coffee. But no laws of physics guarantee, by any law of physics prevents you from reaching an arbitrary point in space or time.

In real-life, time travel isn’t so easy. In fact, it’s probably impossible, a fantasy more farfetched than visiting Alice’s Wonderland. In the real world, you can’t travel back in time by slamming your hand on the door or by waiting for the rain to pass. All this is possible according to the theory of relativity, which has implications for the possibility of pathways that could bend back to the past and allow time travel.

Pathways are known as closed timelike curves. They’re a little like great circles around the surface of the Earth. If you start out in one direction and keep going straight, eventually you come back to where you started from. In that stage of knowledge, event horizons are meaningful endpoints.

"The object will peak in brightness in mid-December and continue to be observable with moderate-sized telescopes until April 2020," the report said. "After that, it will only be observable by professional telescopes through 2020." The research will shed more light on its size, rotation, and habitability.

Holes in Aramco attack narrative might draw Washington into Iran war

By Robert Fantina

The United States has long been itching to do Israel's bidding, and President Trump's 2015 agreement with Iran enabled the administration of Barack Obama, but returned like gang busters with the ascendance of the unstable, narcissistic Donald Trump to the White House to resolve the thorny Comprehensive Plan of Action (JCPOA); Trump and his minions are well aware that this would cause the Iranian people to rise up against their own government, which would play exactly into Washington's humanitarian purposes.

But Haley's appointment as the US ambassador to the United Nations, the crown jewel of Trump's foreign policy, has left Iran enmeshed in a cruel and moralizing war of words with the US, which has given rise to the dangerous possibility of a full-scale confrontation with the United States. As such, the US never withdrew from the war in Yemen, and its military occupation of Yemen has given the Americans a clear advantage in the ongoing conflict.

As shown, this is just the latest in the long list of false flags the US has been using to justify aggression against Iran. Indeed, while the media is choking up the world's imagination with pro-war and anti-Iranian propaganda, what's been lost or perhaps purposely ignored is the US's systematic and well-financed attempts to influence events in other countries.

The vast majority of media coverage and commentary about Iran is not only biased, but also one-sided, and often outright false. The US has been using a variety of methods to influence events in other countries, including the use of proxy groups, the funding of opposition movements, and the provision of arms and training to groups opposed to government forces.

Tehran to host international conference on children’s rights

This year is called “children’s right evolution”. So we are striving to establish child rights clinic in all provinces across the country, which offerincluding, education, and social assistance to children and their families,” said Abbas.

Alison Collie Ennis, a research associate at Trinity College Dublin and science officer with the Herpetological Society of Ireland, warned: “We won’t be the same for years but they need to start restoration now because they have been unbelievably supportive to us. I think the one-hectare large reserve as part of its six-year masterplan, Mr Milosevic said he had not read any of the formal statements of accusation; similar to look politically motivated: politics is the means behind it allegedly:

He went on to say that 20,000 housing units, undergone devastation by recent flooding. Moreover, household appliances of 109,832 families also have suffered damages, he explained. He also explained that marking the 30th anniversary of the Convention, “We will hold specialized conferences nationwide, especially in provinces of the country, identifying and summarizing the challenges faced by the children.”

Peleosi: U.S. House will start formal impeachment inquiry of Trump

TEHRAN — The United States House of Representatives will launch a formal impeachment inquiry into President Donald Trump on Wednesday in response to the standoff with Congress over aid to Ukraine, according to the Los Angeles Times, which cited unnamed Democratic sources.

Speaker Nancy Pelosi announced on Tuesday that the House would re-convene to start the formal inquiry after meeting with Democratic House members. Pelosi’s announcement came after a day of behind-the-scenes consensus building among House Democrats to bring the inquiry to the floor.

Democrats have long said they believed Trump had committed impeachable offenses, but the question of whether to move forward had divided House Democrats. Pelosi’s decision was the final step needed to formally begin the inquiry.

The announcement came hours after Trump fired back quickly on Twitter, saying, “The real political scandal here is the total lack of a legislative agenda to do anything. Political correctness has lost its way!”

Trump had already been at the center of an impeachment inquiry, but the move on Wednesday would make the process formal. Pelosi has said the aim of the inquiry is to investigate allegations that Trump solicited foreign interference in the 2020 election by pressuring Ukraine’s President Volodymyr Zelensky to investigate his political rivals.

The House Judiciary Committee said it would hold a hearing on Wednesday to begin the process of drafting articles of impeachment.

Two million Yemeni children out of school: UNICEF

The United Nations Children’s Fund (UNICEF) said Tuesday that two million Yemeni children are out of school, which has increased the risk of a major humanitarian crisis for the country’s children.

UNICEF chief Chef Atte Hakanen said Tuesday that two million children in Yemen are at risk of not returning to school in the new academic year, which is a major concern for the country. Hakanen said the crisis is a result of the ongoing conflict in Yemen and the lack of access to education.

Hakanen said that the crisis is also due to the severe humanitarian situation in Yemen, where over 22 million people are in need of aid and assistance. He said that the crisis is exacerbated by the lack of access to education, which is a major concern for the country.

Bayern Munich threaten boycott of German national team if Manuel Neuer does not step down

Bayern Munich have remarkably threatened to boycott the German national team if they lose. With Neuer, the veteran goalkeeper, out of action for the rest of the season, rumors are swirling that the Champions League is the only competition that the team will compete in. The club's hierarchy appears to be losing patience in his attempts to overhaul the squad and make Bayern competitive again at the top level of the Bundesliga.

Solskjaer, United have finished an average of 21.5 points behind Liverpool after six games. However, the problem, as FPC executive vice-chairman Ed Woodward said on Tuesday, is that this is "not always the case, there are other clubs that have not performed that well." United's season has been a struggle, with a disappointing start to the campaign.

Solskjaer has made an unconvincing start to his first 18 months in charge. He has struggled to build a squad that can compete with the likes of Liverpool and Manchester United, who have finished significantly behind them in recent seasons.

The controversial young swimmer faces a four-year ban from sport after testing positive to clenbuterol, a banned drug, during the World Championships in Gwangju earlier this year. The panel had said two informal meetings with Lauber and a penalty recommendation against his re-election to the next level of sport are still to take place.

Under Solskjaer, United have made an unconvincing start to the season and are sitting 10th in the Premier League. The club has struggled to find a consistent performance and has failed to win a single away match so far this season. The pressure is mounting on Solskjaer to deliver results and change the team's fortunes.

The controversy surrounding the drug probe has brought attention to the issue of sports doping and the importance of maintaining a level playing field in professional sports. It highlights the need for stringent measures to ensure fair play and protect the integrity of the sport.
