Iran's sabre team finished in eighth place in FIE Sabre Men's Junior World Cup held in Tehran, capital of Iran. Scores gathered near the U.S. Embassy in Tehran on Wednesday to refrain from destabilizing actions in Syria and pro-terrorist elements in the region. Paris has played an important role in destabilizing Syria and pro-terrorist elements in the region. This is while by backing terrorism in Syria and pro-terrorist elements in the region. Paris has played an important role in destabilizing peace and stability in the region. France’s various supports for Takfiri terrorist groups, including ISIS, is an evidence for this claim. Now, accusing Iran of having a negative role in Syria is a black humor that would entertain public opinion.

France which has closed its eyes to its financial and arms support for ISIS in Syria, is now trying to divert public opinion from the conclusion.

About three years ago, French-Swiss Lafarge Company chronicled the international community with the announcement that one of its branches had cooperated with ISIS and other terrorist groups in Syria. It turned out that Lafarge Company has directly and financially backed ISIS.

In addition to financial and arms support for ISIS, France has played an important role in destabilizing Syria by providing financial and arms support for ISIS. France has played an important role in destabilizing Syria by providing financial and arms support for ISIS.

According to TPO Head Hamid Zadoun, considering the recent trade agreement between Iran and EAU, Sergeyev’s visit to Tehran could be a positive step toward facilitating the implementation of the agreement.

Parliament to go ahead with impeachment of agriculture minister: lawmaker

On the other hand, the great amount of French arms sales to Saudi Arabia, which is considered as the hotbed of terrorism in the region, has continued to increase and has been completely objected to France’s actions. Earlier, 17 high-ranking military leaders in the world had issued a joint statement calling for a halt in the sale of French arms to Saudi Arabia.

These organizations objected to French arms sales while French Defense Minister Florence Parly told the parliament in May 2019 that her country’s trade with Saudi Arabia would guarantee French security and energy supplies. She also stated that arms exports do favor peace for the relations with allied countries, and also a strategy for Paris!

Fadavi says riots were contained within 48 hours

The impeachment comes amid various threats to Iran’s food security, including occasional hit-and-run attacks in western Iran, where Kurdish populations live.

The trade agreement between Iran and EU/4 officially came into force on December 2.

Earlier this year, Zadboos said that the trade agreement with EU/4 is a new and important experience for his country in the field of trade and economy.

Making the remarks in a conference on trade opportunities in agricultural sectors of Iran and Eurasian Economic Union, his speech included on November 30, Zadboos said that the president believed that Iran should have a center for expansion of trade relations with the EAEU, which decides to carry forward the ties.

The accession of Iran into EAEU is a major breakthrough for the country’s export of agricultural products, which it would allow expansion on zero tariffs for 70 products while 3,079 other items would enjoy lowered duties, according to Iranian Economy Minister Reza Ardabili.

The government remains committed to implementing much-needed economic reforms in order to revive the country’s economic growth, the government said. The government said that the economic forces had been strengthened in order to ensure growth in export activity to the neighboring countries.

According to Hamidreza Salehi, Iran is currently exporting 1500 megawatts (MW) of electricity to Pakistan, Turkey, and Afghanistan, and it is also looking to expand its exports to the region's countries.

According to Dehqan-Nia, currently, the country's customs administration (IRICA) is working hard to prevent smuggling and other relevant government officials are taking measures to ensure that the exchange of information is completely stopped.

The measures to improve the domestic economy as an important part of the government's budget plans to encourage high-value industrial and high-tech exports.

China's economy important to global growth

China has a major growth potential for the western economy, according to the Central Bank of China and other global economic research organizations.

China's economic growth is expected to continue at a steady pace, with the country's GDP projected to grow at 6% annually over the next five years.

China has already met its goal of being carbon-neutral by 2020, and is expected to continue to develop its digital economy as an important part of its national strategy.

The country has already met its goal of becoming the largest economy in the world in terms of GDP, and is also expected to continue to develop its digital economy as a key component of its national strategy.

CNG consumption up 10% following gasoline rationing

TEHRAN – Head of the CNG promotion program at National Iranian Oil Product Distribution Company, Ali Ramezani said Monday that there is a 10% increase in CNG consumption in the country’s CNG stations.

Ramezani said that the government started rationing of gasoline and increased fuel prices as it plans to use the revenue for supporting underprivileged families.

Mohammad Reza Sheikholeslami, head of the Planning and Budget Organization, said on November 12 that proceeds from the price hikes would be used to fund additional subsides for 18 million underprivileged MLP customers.

According to a statement published by National Iranian Oil Product Distribution Company, the price for a liter of regular gasoline was increased by 1,200 rials (nearly 53 cents at the official rate of 4,200 rials per dollar) from 10,000 rials and the monthly subsides for each passenger car was set at 60 liters by the government, which is about 60 rials per liter.

A 12-liter subsides and devolution of the currency, Iran has one of the cheapest fuel prices in the world and the country has been fighting rampant fuel smuggling to neighbor countries.

In one of its latest reports dubbed “World Energy Outlook 2018”, the International Energy Agency (IEA) put Iran on top of the list of countries with the highest fuel prices of all countries. That means Iran holds the first place in this field and the government is expecting the fuel consumption to increase in the near future.

Additionally, Iran has the second-largest natural gas reserves in the world and the government has put the average consumption of CNG in the country at about 80%.

TEHRAN – Iran’s North Azadegan oil field, which the country shares with Iraq in the Western Karun region, is producing 28,000 barrels per day of oil steadily, Mehr news agency reported on Sunday, citing an official of the field’s development project.

Three years have passed since North Azadegan oil field started production, the official said.

But it is uncertain if the plans for expanding the field’s output will be realized. It was noted that in addition to dilling the mentioned six wells, plans have been made for overhauling the already active wells in 1988. Their average production has increased by 50% since that year, and the field is expected to produce 12 million barrels of oil and gas per day by 2024.

The average crude oil price on the open market was 81.88 dollars per barrel at the close of the day. However, the price fell to 78.7 dollars per barrel after the close of the day.

ALKHALID – KIA Motors recently announced that it will invest $500 million in the development of new fuel-efficient electric vehicles.

The company will be sourcing from renewables.

Aramco markets IPO in Dubai after approving all-electric green energy future

With the electric vehicle revolution practically at our doorstep, Saudi Arabia’s state-owned oil giant, Aramco, has proved itself to be a strong presence in the transition of industry. After all, we don’t want all these Cybertrucks bought by the Saudi royal family to become a hot topic.

Aramco and the KIA (Korea’s leading automaker) have announced a historic move to collaborate on an all-electric vehicle. The deal was announced in a press release from the KIA headquarters in Dubai, following a meeting between the two companies.

Aramco said in a small deal it didn’t comment on specific investor movements. It states that it’s looking at several possible investments and is currently negotiating with various parties.

The KIA did not immediately respond to a Reuters request for comment. However, it can be said that the deal will remove Aramco from the low-cost car market and move it into a new space of being a green energy provider. "It’s about time that Aramco收缩了 its influence in the energy sector and invested into clean energy, considering the global push for sustainable practices," said a source.
The Hypersonic race to hell

The Trio Takes the Lead

A recent article from The New York Times, titled "The Hypersonic race to hell," delineates how several countries—specifically the United States, China, and Russia—are, of course, leading the hypersonic race to hell. This is evident from the frequent testing of such weapons (Fig. 1), as indicated by the article's opening sentence, which reads: "The Pentagon and others are testing vehicles that can travel at five times the speed of sound or 3,836.4 miles per hour (6,164.9 kilometers per hour)." The article further notes that "As hypersonic weapons are developed, the potential for civilian deaths and environmental damage increases." The article also highlights the financial implications of such development, stating: "The U.S. Department of Defense has spent over $5 billion on hypersonic weapons research and development in recent years." The article concludes with a call to action, urging for a "global moratorium on the development and testing of hypersonic weapons until a comprehensive arms control framework is in place."
is the latest US move to increase military pressures on China in the South China Sea. It is also part of a continuing provocation by the US military to send signals to China and its allies, with the US warships regularly patrolling the South China Sea to display the US military presence and send messages to its regional partners, who are equally concerned about China’s increasing presence in the disputed waters.

The US military has made two tactical changes. First, this was the first time that a US littoral combat ship (LCS) had sailed near the Paracel Islands in the South China Sea, and it fired live ammunition from its air and surface-to-air missiles. The Gabrielle Giffords sailed within 12 nautical miles of the islands on March 22, and US air force tracked and monitored the two vessels for several hours. This is significant because the US warships would normally sail far away from the islands, and the live fire exercise is a clear warning to China.

The second change is that the US military will now consider the South China Sea a legitimate area for the US to conduct freedom of navigation operations (FONOPs). This is a concern for China, as it views the South China Sea as its own waters, and any US military action could be seen as an infringement of China’s sovereignty. China has repeatedly stated that it will defend its territorial sovereignty and maritime rights and interests, and it will not allow any country or organization to interfere.

In contrast, China has responded to the US provocation by asserting its sovereignty over the South China Sea. The Chinese military has also conducted its own exercises in the South China Sea, and its navy has increased the frequency of patrols in the region.

China views these US actions as a threat to its national security and territorial integrity. China has repeatedly stated that it will defend its territorial sovereignty and maritime rights and interests, and it will not allow any country or organization to interfere.

On rare occasions, analysts also notice similar system’s dynamic stabilizing effect. The Shura Council of the Islamic Revolution that survived the Nakba and lives in Israel, internally as well. But China is a world power. It has almost become a political choice, not just a political option. China is not only an economic power but also a political and military power. It has a presence in the region and a voice on the world stage. China is no longer a small country, but a great power. It is a rising power. It is the second-largest economy in the world. It is a player on the global stage. It is a force to be reckoned with. China is not just a regional power anymore, but a global power. It is a player in the international system. It is a major player in the global economy. It is a key player in the global politics. It is a force to be reckoned with. China is not a small country, but a great power. It is a rising power. Chinese rocket launches 2 satellites

Chinese space agency launched two new observation satellites (Image 350x490 to 681x675), a successful mission that also appeared to send small rocket boosters crashing into a settlement back on Earth.

The two Long March 3B rockets successfully delivered their payloads to orbit, according to information shared on China’s Weibo social media service and reposted on Twitter. The images show hundreds of distant people being evicted by debris from the Long March 3B, which can be seen falling from the sky as the rocket’s upper stage helps deliver the satellites to their final orbit.

While it may seem surprising, the scene can happen when the rocket stage falls during landing downrange of the Xichang launch site.

China’s first three launch sites were built near island, meaning that their boosters drop segments and stage over land, rather than out at sea.

The first of these sites, Qian Qun 2, is located in Xichang, while the second, Daotai, is located in Wenchang, Hainan, and the third is near Taiyuan in Shanxi.

The dark fate of Netanyah and Trump

These days, Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu and President Donald Trump are having a hard time both. Trump's party is on the verge of losing control in the US Senate after the Democrats won two seats in the Senate. Netanyahu's days as Israel's prime minister seem to be numbered. And the two leaders' relationship has come up short.

The two leaders also get support from each other's followers, which have made Trump's support for Israel a key way of appealing to their respective voters. Netanyahu and Netanyahu's proximity to Trump has provided important political support for each other. Trump's relationship with Netanyahu has bolstered his appeal to millions of pro-Israeli evangelicals, while Netanyahu's closeness to the US president has allowed him to tell Israelis that only he can handle the country's complex foreign policy needs and extract concessions from the US, which has been described by Netanyahu and his allies as a gift to Israel.

The two leaders have worked closely together to shore up their political standing. The US recognition of Jerusalem as Israel's capital was interpreted by both Israeli and American audiences as a gift to Netanyahu, a sign of the two leaders' alliance and personal proximity. Similarly, weeks before a tightly contested Israeli election April 9, Trump made a surprise announcement that the US would recognize the strategic territory. The recognition was interpreted by opponents of Netanyahu and his allies as a gift to Netanyahu, a sign of the two leaders' alliance and personal proximity.

First, Trump terminated the Iran nuclear deal, promoting the idea that his administration enjoyed a special relationship with the Islamic Republic of Iran. Then, he made a surprise announcement that the US would recognize the strategic territory. The recognition was interpreted by opponents of Netanyahu and his allies as a gift to Netanyahu, a sign of the two leaders' alliance and personal proximity.

Second, Trump has been working with the US Congress to strengthen Israel's legal status as a country. This has been a key way of appealing to Trump's base and his supporters in Israel.

In the end, the very similarities between the two — shared domestic legal appeals, shared foreign policy goals, shared attitudes towards the US-Saudi relationship — have made Trump's support for Israel a key way of appealing to his base and his supporters in Israel.

European immigration

The recent rise in popularity of some right-wing politicians, like the recently announced Pim Fortuyn in the Netherlands or Jean-Marie Le Pen in France, has put the issue of immigration firmly on center stage. This report from Rachel Harvey: Pim Fortuyn sometimes tried to dissociate himself from other right-wing European politicians by saying that unlike many others, he didn’t advocate sending immigrants home, he simply wanted to prevent new arrivals. Hollande in his turn dissociated himself from Pim Fortuyn saying that immigration was a threat only for those who had made it to Europe.

The 65-year-old coach led Iran to gold medal at the 2017 Asian Games and won a bronze medal with Team Melli in the 2014 AFC Asian Cup final.

Ivankovic reached Iran in the 2006 FIFA World Cup, where the Persian failed to qualify for the next stage after losing to Algeria and Portugal. Team Melli drew with Angola and Iceland in the group.

In an interview with Tehran Times, Ivankovic said that he doesn’t know anything about the ongoing situation.
