Syrian army’s great and new victories: Terrified terrorists are escaping

The Syrian army has launched a battle to retake Maarat al-Numan from the Salvation Army and a special forces unit in southern Idlib Province. The offensive is part of a broader campaign to recapture territories held by the group in recent months.

According to the Syrian military, the army has taken control of three villages in the area, including a key strategic location. The operation is said to have been carried out with the support of the Russian air force, which provided aerial cover.

In a statement, the Syrian military claimed to have “neutralized” several ISIS fighters, while also accusing the group of attempting to deploy weapons of mass destruction.

The offensive has been met with heavy resistance, with reports of heavy fighting and casualties on both sides.

The operation marks a significant victory for the Syrian army, which has been embroiled in a long-running conflict with various rebel groups. The army has been backed by Russia and Iran, while the US-led coalition has supported the opposition.

The Syrian military’s success is likely to be welcomed by Russia, which has been a key ally of the government.

Syria reports laat 500 rebels killed

The Syrian government has reported that more than 500 rebels have been killed in recent fighting in the northwestern Idlib province.

The government claimed to have carried out a series of air strikes in the area, targeting rebel positions and causing heavy casualties. The government also said that it had made advances in the area.

However, the opposition has disputed the government’s claims, saying that it had suffered heavy losses.

The conflict in Syria has been ongoing since 2011, with more than 300,000 people killed and millions displaced.
Larijani calls for Iran-Russia co-op to counter U.S. dictatorship

TEHRAN – Mojtaba Alizadeh suggests ways to strengthen the policy of Iran-Russia cooperation in order to counter the policy of the United States and the American occupation forces.

Larijani made the remarks during the second Iran-Russia parliamentary session, which the deputy of the Islamic Consultative Assembly stated: "The United States is dragging the region situation towards internationalization and also weapons of mass destruction, and also trying to dominate the region towards an international dictatorship," calling for expanding relations with Iran and Russia.

Larijani noted that Iran and Russia are important and influential countries in the region.

He also called for expansion of economic ties.

In a press conference after the meeting, Volodin said that Russia seeks to expand relations with Iran in various areas.

He said: "The situation facing the two countries and the region is well-known to us, and we believe that must be continued within the framework of mutual interests and respect and hopes on the future," the State Duma chief said.

Elsewhere, he said that Iran and Russia are two partners that are crucial to stability in the region and other countries' affairs and do not exercise double standards.

Larijani: Threats against cultural sites are terrorism

Larijani also said that threats against cultural sites are a "definition of terrorism." He added: "We respect the relations between the two countries and we do not seek to undermine them."

Volodin acknowledged the importance of cultural sites and called for their protection.

He also called for expansion of economic ties.

U.S. senator urges White House to back off from a war with Iran

By staff and agency

U.S. House Foreign Affairs Committee Chairman Eliot Engel (D-NY) and U.S. President Donald Trump are clashing on a beating drums of war against Iran, urging the White House to consider the consequences.

"The United States, frankly, has been involved in two wars in the Middle East," Engel said in a statement.

In a tweet on Saturday, October 4, a day after Trump said that he is prepared to "HIT VERY FAST AND VERY HARD" Iran, Larijani said that he is prepared to "do everything we can to stop Trump's aggression," adding: "We respect the relations between the two countries and we do not seek to undermine them."

Volodin acknowledged the importance of cultural sites and called for their protection.

China's domestic consumption continues to grow, leading to a surge in oil demand. As a result, China has become a major importer of crude oil, becoming a key buyer for several OPEC+ members. The country's demand for crude oil has been increasing, especially for blends that are suitable for its refineries. This has led to a rise in the price of Brent crude, with the benchmark oil price reaching $82 per barrel, according to Bloomberg. OPEC+ countries have been reducing their production to support global oil prices, and this has helped to keep Brent prices at the current level.
Oil drops below $60 as China virus drives demand concern

Crude prices extended declines on Monday, dropping more than 3% as investors bet China’s virus outbreak will dent demand in the world’s biggest oil importer. Brent crude fell $1.56, or 3.6%, to $41.69 a barrel. WTI fell $1.47, or 3.6%, to $39.48.

By Luke Burgess

The oil market hinges on moves to deal with the virus outbreak. News of new cases is one thing, but the market is waiting for news on demand in China from the world’s biggest oil importer. Brent crude last month was just above $60 a barrel. But the market is now betting that China will keep down its economic activity to keep cases from spreading.

Crude prices are down by as much as 30% or more this year, due to the virus.

The German government said on Monday that China’s virus outbreak could lead to a 0.5% decline in global economic growth in the first quarter.

China accounts for about 10% of global oil demand and about 15% of global natural gas demand.

The virus has led to a reduction in travel and economic activity in China. The country is the world’s biggest consumer of coal and a major producer of crude oil and natural gas.

The virus is also expected to hit global oil demand, as China is the world’s biggest consumer of crude oil.

China is also a major producer of natural gas, particularly in the western part of the country.

Pakistan introduces first fully electric vehicle

Pakistan launched on Friday its first fully-electric three-wheeler, a vehicle in a bid to reduce carbon emission in the line of “Green Pakistan” mission. Pakistan’s first ever electric three-wheeler vehicle has been unveiled in an event organized by the Ministry of Climate Change, Environment, Forests, Climate Change, Environmental Investment and Sugar Engineering Works Limited in Islamabad.

While leading the guests to the Advisor to Prime Minister (Punjab) Dr. Aamer Suleman, the Advisor pointed out that the Electrical Vehicle (EV) policy will mean to play a role in the Pakistan Bureau of Statistics. It is eco-friendly, low-price and the money which is saved on running cost can be used to save the country in one way or the other way. He added. The battery is designated as Ecolift, Li-ion Battery, with power 48V, 125, 15kW. It will be charged in 3 hours, and once the Rickshaw gets charged it can drive for 125 km. The advisor added.

Moreover, the vehicles will be locally manufactured except for the electric kit.

The advance comes after the cabinet approved the proposal in November 2019, to put at least 30% of vehicles sold in the country after 2024, to be electric three-wheeler vehicles, alongside 100,000 cars and 1,000 buses.

Yet, the government’s aide Fawad Chaudhry had vowed to sell 10 billion trees in five years, banning plastic bags, introducing electric vehicles, along with projects of green buildings, proper waste management, and clean drinking water.

8 takeaways from the Davos Day of Innovation And Solutions

By Randall Lane

While Donald Trump and Greta Thunberg dominated the news coverage, the World Economic Forum at Davos focused on “stakeholder capitalism,” and both演讲者转到与公共服务和非盈利机构合作，使世界的最无产阶级国家。With that in mind, Forbes helped convene conversation in Advances of Arts in Innovation, with MIT Connection Science and Global Citizen, the advocacy group that has helped convene world leaders to take action on pandemic-related initiatives. The meeting featured a panel discussion in Davos of activists Priyanka Chopra-Jonas and the world’s vaccine czar, Gavi chief executive Dominique de Vosgez, who is also a new member of Global Goal Live.

Accordingly, requesting the U.S. dollar and depositing the currency for dollar. In the meantime, achieving the above target Pakistan are directly imported from Japan. The advancement comes after the cabinet approved the said revenue has no any value in the international world nations have no way out of this trend unless they reinvigorate their exports to the U.S. or invest in the United States but also they have to purchase more government and people. Factually and clearly, the decreasing the decline of dollar and the world’s financial system, certain industrial economic-power countries, including China and Japan, have to accept not only flat dollar and the bonds against their exports as a way to decrease the bonds’ value face decline. Historic Centre of San Gimignano

The Historic Centre of San Gimignano sits on a hilltop, dominating the surrounding landscape. During the Middle Ages, it was a part of the so-called “Tuscan City States” and a major center of culture and politics. The town became independent in the 15th and 16th centuries, and the city walls were built to protect against invasions and to control trade.

The town grew around two principal squares: the triangular Piazza della Cisterna, ornamented with a lovely central well, and the Piazza Duomo, dating from the late 14th century. These squares were important centers of activity, hosting markets and social events.

The town is famous for its unique towers, which were built by merchants who controlled the town. The towers served as a symbol of wealth and status, and they also provided a view of the surrounding countryside.

According to Ali Qazeel, head of cancer department at the Ministry of Health, every 5 years about 100,000 women are diagnosed with cervical cancer, and 25 years ago diabetes was a concern. Hossein Vatanpour, IRNA reported.

Vatanpour said that 8 percent of adult women are infected with HPV, mostly between ages 15 and 25 years. He said that cancer of the cervical is two to 3 years, according to the International Agency for Research on Cancer.

Cervical cancer is a cancer arising from the surface of the cervix, which is the lower part of the uterus, also known as the uterine neck. It is the most common cancer among women of reproductive age. The high mortality rate from cervical cancer globally could be reduced through a comprehensive approach that includes prevention, early diagnosis, effective screening and treatment programmes.

WHO's Eastern Mediterranean Region scale up preparedness for novel coronavirus

In light of the continued global situation related to the transmission of novel coronavirus (nCoV) globally, out of which 1297 cases have been reported for novel coronavirus (2019-nCoV) in China, about 237 people have been treated and 22 have died at 3:27 am, 25 January (GMT). Now, cases have also been reported in Australia, France, Malaysia and French Republic (2019-nCoV) described as a global health emergency on 30 January 2020 in China, as a result of this global health situation.

WHO Regional Office for Eastern Mediterranean Region to ensure that national preparedness and response efforts are accelerated in line with the International Health Regulations (IHR) and 2019-nCoV situation.

WHO's Eastern Mediterranean Region has been coordinating with countries and regional partners on the preparedness and response capacities. Regional plan to enhance preparedness and operational readiness of countries has been developed and an all-hazard assessment approach. Active case screening has been established in countries with reported cases and details on the entry screening measures are being collected.

Health supplies, including thermal scans, have been procured and prepositioned in WHO's regional logistics hub in Dubai, and 3 international reference laboratories for detection have been established, with WHO's Regional Office coordinating the shipment of laboratory samples. WHO's Regional Office continues to monitor the situation and will work with countries to understand the risk of novel coronavirus importation and will provide guidance to countries to ensure that potential cases are detected and appropriately managed.

WHO recommends that to protect against possible importations, countries should avoid high-risk travel for individuals infected from acute respiratory infections, wash hands frequently, ensure basic protection, and attention to the environment, and avoid pregnant women and children with or without symptoms. WHO does not recommend any specific additional health measures for travelers.
Lebanon’s parliament passes 2020 budget amid financial crisis

Lebanon’s parliament passed the 2020 budget on Monday afternoon, a step toward avert the economic collapse that would otherwise ensue might be unrealistic as the country wrestles with a massive debt burden. The 2020 budget covers a deficit of around 7% of GDP, the budget is a part of Lebanon's efforts to address the financial crisis, as seen in the resignation of Prime Minister Hassan Diab in December. As lawmakers continued to debate the budget, protesters hurled stones at police who were deployed in force around parliament. The budget was first drafted by Saad al-Hariri’s government in 2019 but was later revised to include spending cuts and tax increases. The bill is due to be voted on in parliament next week, but its fate is uncertain as the country’s economic situation continues to deteriorate. (Source: Reuters)

Taliban claims it shot down U.S. military aircraft in central Afghanistan

Crashing in military helicopters, a U.S. aircraft crashed in central Afghanistan on Wednesday, with the Taliban in control of the area where the incident occurred. The aircraft was shot down by the Taliban, who claim to have shot down a U.S. drone and a U.S. helicopter in the same area in recent weeks. The Taliban said in a statement that the downed aircraft was a surveillance drone and that the attack was in response to U.S. air strikes in the region. The United States has not yet commented on the incident. (Source: Reuters)

Tunisia’s biggest party Ennahda rejects new government proposal

The biggest party in Tunisia’s parliament on Monday rejected the idea of a government that excludes other parties, adding that such a government would be a step towards another election. The statement by the moderate Islamic Ennahda threatens to further fragment the political scene in the country, which is suffering from a series of economic and political crises. (Source: Reuters)

More than 100 children in Greece’s Moria camp need urgent care

Mohammed, two years and eight months old, has been living in the Moria refugee camp in Greece, for four months with a British family. He has been diagnosed with hydrocephalus, a blockage of the circulation of the brain, which has increased pressure in the skull, causing brain damage. In the arms of his mother, 26-year-old Fawza Almahdi, he wriggles as she attempts to soothe him. The family of four, including a one-year-old girl, live on the ground floor of a block of apartments, the top of an olive grove, which is acting as an entrance to the refugee camp, now a close-up to 20,000 people as it was designed to hold no more than 3,000. They came here due to wars, fleeing the conflict in Syria and the violence in Afghanistan. Mohammed “is sick in the night,” Almahdi said. “He complains of headaches a lot and so we wake up to check on him. We can see that he is OK. I worry about him so much.” The family made the decision to leave Syria, a high-risk country, and come to Greece, a key area in Europe and the EU, to send the children to receive medical care. The organization says they are being referred by doctors to MSF (Doctors Without Borders) and others are deeply concerned about the long-term impact of this. In July 2019, the Greek government changed its policy to seek asylum seekers and undocumented people from Afghanistan without medical care, according to MSF. The latest developments come as the Trump administration announced plans to send a contingent of troops to Afghanistan to “secure” the country’s withdrawal from the war. (Source: al-Jazeera)

Palestinians reiterate rejection of U.S.’ deal of the century

U.S. forces present in areas controlled by Kurds in northeastern Syria have clashed with the Turkish military in the past few days over the control of a border region. The latest clash occurred on Wednesday, when a U.S. military helicopter and a Turkish military helicopter collided over a border region. The two forces have been at odds over the control of the region, which is rich in oil and gas deposits. The latest clash highlights the ongoing tensions between the two forces in the region. Farhad Ghaemi slowly getting back to games: FIVB

MNA — On its Instagram post on Monday, Federation Internationale de Volleyball (FIVB) posted a photo of Iran's Farhad Ghaemi, who suffered a cracked ankle during training sessions with the national team in a previous year, saying: "After missing the AVC Men's Tokyo Qualification 2020 due to injury, Iran's Farhad Ghaemi is slowly getting back into the game." It said, "As for Iran, they have qualified to the 2020 Olympics."

Ghaemi, who was injured at the start of the 2019 world cup, has not been part of recent matches of the Iranian national volleyball team.

On January 12, Iran used past China in straight sets (25-14, 25-22, 25-14) on the home court of the AFC Men’s Tokyo Volleyball Qualification tournament to book a place at the 2020 Olympic Games as the host Asian team.

In December, the teams of Iran, Argentina, Brazil, Italy, Poland, France, the US, and Tunisia have qualified for the 2020 Olympic Games as the host Asian team.

There were recent choices for the second time in a row, as the Persians came fifth in the previous edition held in Rio.

Regragui takes charge of Al Duhail

Qatar Stars League leaders Al Duhail SC have announced Mo- roccan Walid Regragui will be in charge of the team as head coach for the remainder of the season.

Regragui, who joins Al Duhail from Moroccan outfit FUS Rabat, replaced Moroccan Walid Ramzi after he was sacked three days ago due to personal reasons.

Born in Morocco, Regragui played for several French clubs while he also spent two years in Spain with Racing de Santander before returning to his country and joining FUS Rabat in 2014.

The 44-year-old Regragui will be looking to keep Al Duhail at the top of the QSL standing and also to achieve the successful campaign of Al Sadd, who won the title 19 times.

The competitions will be held on April 13-14. The event will be held in spiral, speed and compound fields.

Can Azerbaijan serve as a playground for Iran?

The Australian, however, broke back when Nadal was serving for the 12th time. He preyed on his opponent’s mental fatigue. He wrapped up the match in three sets, winning 6-3, 3-6, 7-6 (4) 7-6 (4) victory on Monday. Nadal rides out Kyrgios challenge to reach quarter-finals

Bafa Nadaf suffered his first loss of the tournament but rode out a challenge from the Australian to move into the quarter-finals of the Australian Open for the 12th time with a 6-3, 6-1, 6-2 win at Rod Laver Arena.

It was a match for the ages, with Kyrgios challenging Nadal to the very end. Nadal brushed aside his Australian opponent to reach the Australian Open quarter-finals.

The world number one got his teeth and went in the fighting spirit of the Australian Open. He put on a fight, but Nadal’s victory was a comfortable one.

"It was a very tough match, it seemed like I had control of the match with 6-3 and 5-3 in the fifth. But I was not able to secure the victory," said Nadal, who hit 62 winners to Kyrgios’s 57.

Kyrgios showed once again he has the skills to be a Grand Slam champion. He displayed an array of skills and played to his full potential.

But he could not match Nadal who has been in top form. Nadal’s victory was an important one as he is looking for a 20th Grand Slam title.

The 34-year-old Nadal, who has won 19 Grand Slam titles, said, "I was not able to secure the victory because I lacked in the final moments of the match."

But he was delighted with his performance and said, "I was able to secure the victory because I matched his quality of play."
