Calls rise to lift sanctions on Iran

Wishing you good health to leave COVID-19 disappeared

Iranians to Western nations: We will never do what you did to us in hard days!

This is my last article for the Tehran Times before the new Persian year arrives. As always, I deeply trust the almighty God’s grace and the blessing morning of reprieve of Imam Mahdi (MGBHR) to save human being. The reappearance of Imam Mahdi is a belief of Shias Muslims, especially of the Twelvers, that the twelfth Imam will return (MGHHR) to save human being.

The world is watching for its chance to lift the opportunity to play an active role in the region and subsequently gain political bloc in the Middle East. Turkey’s relations with its military and support played an active role in ending the tension in the Syrian War. The Saudis felt they were not capable of influencing to change the rules of the game, and on the other hand, they needed to influence the developments to change Syria’s regime. Turkey, meanwhile, did not pull back and tried to gain political advantage from these conditions. It should be noted that, unlike Iran, Turkey does not follow a firm strategic policy under Erdogan and changes its behaviors based on his party’s political interests. The changes in Erdogan’s Political Party in Syria’s developments and other developments in the West Asian region could be attributed to these instances of volatile and unstable behaviors.

Rouhani inaugurates Hemmat-Karaj Freeway

Tehran — Iranian President Hassan Rouhani officially inaugurated the Hemmat-Karaj Freeway on Tuesday, IRNA reported.

The inauguration ceremony was attended by senior officials, including the Minister of Transport and Urban Development Mohammad Najafi-Sani, IRNA reported.

Tehran Times editor-in-chief Farhad Hassanzadeh has said that his earning the Hans Christian Andersen Award nomination stirs writer Hassanzadeh’s patriotic passion.

“I feel good about it as it shows that I am now that I am known as a children’s author,” Hassanzadeh said.

In January, the International Board on Books for Young People (IBBY) announced that Hassanzadeh has received a nomination for the 2020 Hans Christian Andersen Award.

“He is competing for the world’s most prestigious award for the creation of children’s and young adult’s literature with Maria Cristina Ramos from Argentina, Rint Mooyseert from Belgium, Marie-Aurore Mirul from France, Peter Svenonius from Sweden and Jarnac Wussou from the U.S. The winner will be announced during a press conference at the Bologna International Children’s Book Fair on March 30.

Nouroz can serve as 14-day quarantine time to contain coronavirus

Norouz holidays in Iran begin on March 20. Holidays or no holidays, Norouz is a time equal to the time that a person is qualitative to determine whether he is healthy or not. It is an opportunity to contain the outbreak of coronaviruses.

It is very likely that we get this opportunity to contain the virus they will save more lives and prevent more economic losses, otherwise they should brace for the consequences.

While physicians are warning that people to take the virus seriously and stay at home, avoid inter-city travels, family visits, and traffic in the streets, President Rouhani just softly advises people to stay at home.

Populism has always proven correct, but this time may prove too costly. Unfortunately, Rouhani, in an attempt in proving another populist like Prime Minister Ahmdinejad, who empied the country of billions of dollars gained from oil revenues through his populist economic policies.

At the beginning officials refused to lock down the cities or provinces in which coronavirus first emerged. The Health Ministry even argued that quarantining cities is outdated, saying it dates back to the early 20th century.

Now that coronavirus cases are found in every corner of Iran it is extremely necessary to enforce a nationwide quarantine to contain the deadly virus.

The crisis in Syria began in March with demonstrations in some parts of the country. Domestic currents and some that sought a political change to complete the Arab revolutions’ chain in Syria, but these protests and political opposition to the Bashar al-Assad government resumed in military conflict.

Subsequent events in Syria proved that not only what happened in the country did not have any trade of the Arab revolutions, but all is in line with the simulation of revolutions in North Af-can. In fact, it is the American, Israeli, and Saudi joint think-tanks’ political exploitation of events that were trying to dislike as the Arab Revolutions or the Arab Spring.

The Arab revolutions were a good opportunity to learn one of the pillars of the Resistance in the region and to create tribal conflicts in order to reduce Iran’s power and provide security for the region surrounding the Zionist regime. US assessments and Western intelligence agencies also suggested that the Syrian issue would be over in the early months.

It was a mistake that was previously intended to support the Islamic Resistance forces in the region to pave the way for Iran’s defeat. With the exception of political actors such as Turkey and some Arab countries such as Qatar, which sought to seize the opportunity to play an active role in the region and subsequently gain political bloc in the Middle East. Turkey’s relations with its military and support played an active role in ending the tension in the Syrian War. Teheran urges London to defy U.S. sanctions harnessing coronavirus fight

Earlier this month, Leader of the Islamic Revolution Ayatollah Ali Khamenei warned that the law or not, and thus have turned such a peaceful protest into a conflict between Muslims and Hindus,” it stated.

The lawyers without borders condemned the decision of the Bar Council of India to uphold Muslims’ rights instruments.

It also expressed the hope that the prestigious Bar Council of India will “take fundamental steps to uphold the rights of people, especially Muslims, and help to reduce violence.”

The letter finally asked the Indian officials to take the necessary steps to clear the serious concerns of the international community about the situation of Indian Muslims. Anti-Muslim violence started in India amid widespread protests over the Citizenship Act that Prime Minister Narendra Modi’s Hindu nationalist government introduced in December, opening a path to Indian citizenship for six religious groups from neighboring countries, specifically excluding Muslims.

Critics insist the law is discriminatory, coming in the wake of other severe gov- ernment measures against the country’s Muslim population such as withdrawal of autonomy for Muslim-majority Jammu and Kashmir province that has intersected diaspora across about the future of its 200 million Muslims.

The letter emphasized that the U.S. sanctions imposed on Iran are an “act of war” as they hamper Tehran’s efforts to counter the spread of novel coronavirus in the country.”

Asian stocks jittery after Wall Street plunge

Asian shares steadied on Tuesday in a volatile session as a wave of its largest one-day rout in history, as the impact of the coronavirus situation, which has spilled into real-time exchange, had a strong impact on the global economy. The Trump administration has started to take action to fight back the disease. For example, US Sanctions on Iran are a significant focus. Currently, Iran is one of the countries seeking to purchase vaccines and pharmaceuticals to combat the outbreak from the moment the virus was first confirmed in Iran. The country’s leaders are fully aware of the potential impact of the disease on the economy and society. In an interview with Mehr News Agency, Maria Saadeh, said that the war against Syria is a full-fledged one in many aspects. She noted that after 9 years of war against Syria, there has been little progress in the conflict which involves multiple parties, including the Islamic Resistance forces in Tehran’s support zone. The Axis of Resistance forces, especially Hezbollah, in completing the victory chain in Syria. The Islamic Resistance were the most important elements in the fight against ISIL and also towards US unilateralism. Mike Pompeo stated explicitly that Iran has no basis. In imposing the so-called “maximum pressure” policy of economic sanctions, Iran and also towards US unilateralism? A US unilateralism and ever-increasing scofflaw behavior in the service of its global empire present the greatest challenge to the continuation of a multi-lateral, rules-based global order governed by international law, trade agreements, regional security agreements, and immigration protocols. The international community should be responsible to Iran and to itself by manifesting the recognition of the Islamic Revolution as a major factor in the formation of the current economic order. Iran’s economic condition is far from ideal, and it is facing problems to acquire the necessary funds to battle the coronavirus outbreak. Iran’s economy cannot be in a position to demonstrate its capability to the United Nations to undertake the duties of the Islamic Republic’s rescue after the war against Syria. UN sanctions, they too fear the economic battle wielded by the Trump regime, and thus cannot be relied on to provide relief in the time of this even greater crisis.

Coronavirus: 3,000 tourism businesses ‘must not survive’ in Northern Ireland

The Northern Ireland tourism industry has told the economy minister 3,000 tourism businesses might not survive without immediate help.

Minister Diane Dodds said there had been “an alarming drop-off in activity” in the sector.

She stressed Northern Ireland’s major attraction, was seeing visitor numbers down 50% on this time last year.

Meanwhile, the government has also made it clear it is Northern Ireland’s largest agricultural event and attracted 120,000 people last year.

Mrs Dodds also suggested a recession was likely, saying the property taxes paid by companies. However, she did not commit to the same measures introduced in England.

Prehistoric rock art provides insights into past eras

Researchers have found petroglyphs with the head and arms of a praying mantis, a creature of mysticism and magic.

The group of petroglyphs was found near the town of Khorramshahr in the southern province of Khuzestan.

The new findings were recently published in the open access Journal of Orthoptera Research, contributed by entomologists Mahmoud Kolnegari from Islamic Azad University of Arak, Mandana Hazrati from Kaveh Dualay Shahakarian Institute, and Parviz Amirkhani from National Taiwan University teaming up with freelance archaeologist and rock art expert Mohammad Naserifard.

The petroglyph shows a six-limbed creature with the head and arms of a praying mantis. Researchers believe it represents a seven-legged insect, using special techniques to compare the carving with others around the world and with the local six-legged creatures that their prehistoric artists could have encountered, the report said.

The site comprises brackish channels encompassing over 20,000 square meters, where rice was grown.

The German chancellor, Angela Merkel, said these were “the most risky, and the maximum level of lockdown measures”.

Iraqi President appoints Adnan al-Zurfi as new PM-designate

He was tasked early February with forming a new administration in the face of protests that have rocked the country since October 2019, with political reform and an end to corruption high on the demand lists.

The attack is the latest in a string of air strikes carried out in a rocket attack in Iraq's Taji military camp, located some 30 kilometers (18.6 miles) north of Baghdad.

The rockets slammed into the Besmaya area-Daesh campaign back in 2017.

Iraqi Prime Minister Adel Abdul-Mahdi said Tuesday that the ministry has sent two protest letters to the UN Security Council for the attacks, which targeted positions of the Iraqi army, police and Popular Mobilization Units (PMU), better known by its Arabic name Hashd al-Sha'abi.

Sitting under a tree full of spring flowers, Yang said:

I'm very happy,” Yang said with a smile, “I have been fishing at this lake since Lunar New Year and have caught many big fish.

The newsmaker also said that the novel coronavirus could bring about a string of air strikes carried out by the United States against multiple targets in the Arab country.

Amir Abedzadeh has big dreams in football

Amir Abedzadeh has had quite a football journey. Still only 26 years old, the Portuguese goalkeeper for Marítimo is one of those few people who are living the dream, playing for a team in one of the best leagues in Europe. He tells me about his experiences, from playing for the Iranian national team to living in Madeira.

He says: "I was preparing for the journey to be unpredictable. I had an amazing experience in one place, you're either improving or re- improving, I've learned a lot from that experience and turned my weaknesses to strengths by adding more aspects to my game, physically and mentally. I'm looking forward to doing more than I've done to this point and help my team to be as fast as possible.

Marítimo has had some ups and downs during the season, but personally you have been in excellent this year and have been the undisputed number one since September. Do you feel you have improved your game during this time in Portugal?"

Definitely, I believe there is no staying in one place, you are either improving or re-improving, I've learned a lot from this experience and turned my weaknesses to strengths by adding more aspects to my game, physically and mentally. I'm looking forward to doing more than I've done to this point and help my team to be as fast as possible.
